

The National Whig
FRIDAY EVENING, JUNE 13, 1847.
FOR PRESIDENT, IN 1848,
MAJOR GENERAL
ZACHARY TAYLOR, OF LOUISIANA,
THE HERO
OF
PALO ALTO, RESACA DE LA PALMA,
MONTEREY,
And Buena Vista.
Subject to the decision of the Whig National Convention.

THE ENEMY'S LAST HOPE.

"As in my person are at this moment united two kinds of representations, both supreme—one military and the other political—which especially claim the fulfillment of peculiar duties, it is necessary that I should satisfy both. I will do so as clearly and succinctly as the strained position in which I am placed will admit. The first requires that I should state freely and explicitly my opinion respecting the military operations under my charge, and these are that the war must be continued until we shall have obtained ample justice from our unjust aggressors; and that to arrive at this result it is necessary to save the capital at all hazards, because its defence is necessary for the basis of ulterior operations, and because I fear, with good reason, that if the capital should be occupied without resistance, the spirit of the people will be broken, and that the complete submission of the country must be inevitable.

My duty as the first magistrate of the nation, at present shamefully censured and suspected by unjust and artful detractors, requires that I should remove a pretext invented by perfidy and pusillanimity in order to neutralize the generous efforts which the good citizens are disposed to make for the salvation of its independence and honor. In order to accomplish this it is indispensable to make known to Government my programme, to which I have previously alluded, and of which I now repeat the following two points: First, to carry on the war on the basis before indicated; and secondly, to consider the salvation of the capital as indispensable. Being determined not to admit any compromise on either of these points, I communicate the same to your Excellency that you may impart to his excellency, the President, and should he decide against me you will at once tender my resignation as commander-in-chief and first magistrate of the Republic, and forward my passports to retire to wherever may be most convenient for me."

We publish the above extract from Santa Anna's address of the 19th of May, 1847 to the Mexican people and to the Mexican government. It is the pith of the affair. The reader will be struck with the avowal that the defence of the Capital and the prevention of its occupation by the American army constitute the enemy's last hope. Santa Anna confesses that with its fall, the complete submission of the country will be inevitable. For our part we do not see that this is a necessary result, if the real object of President Polk be the conquest of peace; but the despairing announcement of such a result by Santa Anna leads us to believe that he is aware of the ulterior designs of Mr. Polk, that he knows them to be the conquest and subjugation of entire Mexico. We have never ceased to entertain the opinion that such will be the issue of this war and every day's events only go to sustain us in our belief.

Santa Anna avows further that the war must and will be continued until the Mexicans shall have obtained ample justice from the aggressor. We would ask Mr. Polk and his supporters, where is the hope of peace in this policy? Is it not the language of despairing men, who, knowing that they never can obtain the object of their wishes, continue to announce it as the main purpose of keeping up the struggle, in order, as it were, to sanctify their resistance? But in the next breath, the safety of the capital is made the sole reliance of these people for even the indulgence of hope, with the confession that if it falls, they will look upon everything as lost, and make no further efforts to redeem their existence as a nation. Not many weeks ago, we gave it as our opinion that the battle of Cerro Gordo—before it was fought—would be the signal, if we were victorious (of which there was no doubt) of the dissolution of the Mexican government. Have we not seen it going down step by step ever since? And it is now in its last throes. The occupation of the capital will be the hour of "its expiring breath," for we are having to do with a people, who, though savage, prefer death to life in the presence of their foe. While we must regret such self-destruction, we cannot but admire the spirit which animates them. Americans would do the same thing. "Death or Liberty"—was our watchword in two wars—but we never had Americans to invade us.

In this address Santa Anna endeavored to remove from him the suspicions which defeat had raised against him, and he throws himself into the arms of the nation with a free, frank avowal of his designs. The government replies, under date the 20th of May, that his views are approved, that it has no purpose of permitting him to resign, that the city would be placed in his charge the moment he should arrive from Ayotla whence he issued his address. Our last advice are down to the 22d of May, and Santa Anna was in command of the capital, and exerting himself, to the utmost, to save the capital—not by defences around the same, but by fortifying the passes which approach to it. Every intelligence we have from the scene of operations, prepares us for hearing of a hard fought battle before our forces shall occupy the Aztec capital. The result is inevitable. The Mexican power will be defeated again, will be broken forever and the Aztec Empire will fall into the arms of the United States. Santa Anna sees the issue with the eye of a prophet and has announced it in this address.

But when that hour comes, what then?—Aye, what then,—will ask the American people in a voice of thunder?

P. S. Since the above was written we find in the Union of last night, Santa Anna's letter of resignation of the Presidency, in which he says that Gen. Scott dares not march on the Capital, unless aided by a revolutionary movement in the Capital, that he resigns, to arrest that revolutionary movement and that the city and passes to it are in a state of defence. The Union says that the date of the letter of resignation is the 29th of May.

Gen. Leslie Coombs, the distinguished speaker of the Kentucky House of Representatives arrived in town this morning.

We are indebted to the Baltimore American for the account of the doings of the Whig Convention at Cambridge.

P. S. A specimen copy can be seen at our office.

COLONEL MAY.

This gallant officer arrived in town last evening by the Western train. He visits his native town after a long absence, during which he has passed through "perils of flood and field" that seldom fall to the lot of man. He has faced the iron hail and bore a charmed life. He has turned the tide of battle and saved a whole army. He has been in the hottest of four terrible battles, the beloved of his commander in chief, and the pride and hope of his companions in arms. He has seen his brother officers pour out their life blood like water, and he remains to feel the full sense of their loss. We welcome the American Lances to his home, and though deprived of the solace of a fond father's embrace, he will find in the bosom of a noble and affectionate family that consolation which sisters and brothers alone can give.

The Wilmington Chronicle is pleased to consider the National Whig an influential journal and worthy of an extended support. Such friends are worth having. By the by, we can say the same of the Chronicle. It is using up Mr. Polk just now.

"We cheerfully publish the prospectus of the Daily National Whig," says that sterling Whig Journal, the Raleigh Star, of the 16th inst., "agreeably to the request of the editor; but we cannot find it in our conscience to charge a brother who is doing such important service in the good cause, for so small a favor; and we hope that no one who publishes it will comply with that part of his request which calls for a bill at the foot of it." May the richest blessings attend your steps, Mr. Lemay, for this generous act on your part! We shall treasure up such noble conduct in our heart of hearts.

Alluding to the National Whig, the Martinsburg Va. Gazette, one of the ablest Whig Journals in the country, says: "In these days of Executive usurpation, we welcome every additional sentinel at the gates of power, that its encroachments may be watched with the most sleepless scrutiny, and promptly proclaimed to the people." We shall prove true to our trust and never forfeit your good opinion, friend Gazette.

Postmasters, whose salaries amount to less than $200 a year, have the franking privilege restored to them, as formerly. They can now remit money to Printers free of charge, as well as the names of new subscribers.

The Whigs expect to carry in Neil S. Brown by 5000 majority at least, in Tennessee. It is the refinement of cruelty—the way in which Neil is using up Aaron on the stump.

The Rockville, Ia. Whig considers the National Whig brilliant and spirited. Boy, send the Weekly.

Mr. Weir the editor of the Columbia, S. C. Chronicle died, last week, much lamented.

The Raleigh Star informs us that the recent Commencement of Wake Forest College in North Carolina gave the richest evidence of skill in the teachers and docility in the pupils.

The Freeman of Wake County, North Carolina, not having the fear of James K. Polk or his fagelman Thomas Ritchie before their eyes, intend to assemble in Raleigh on the 3d of July, to raise their voices in favor of electing to the next Presidency the old Hero of Buena Vista, whom the Administration and its panders are contending to crush.

We find the following in the New Bedford Mercury:

"The gentleman who insulted a lady on Wednesday evening last, at the corner of Sixth and Union street, and who was so properly chastised by her on the spot, is requested to make himself personally known to the subscriber, when he shall have all the sympathy and surgical attention that the case may require, and no questions asked."

"CHARLES GRINNELL."

How skillfully, says the U. S. Gazette, the surgeon must have applied the dressing to the poor gentleman who was chastised by the lady. It must have been a capital occasion for a lecture. There is nothing like an operation to illustrate the text of the lecturer.

We notice in the Virginia papers, that general attention has been drawn to the necessity of an improvement of the navigation of the Meherrin river, in that State. A convention is to be held on the 4th Monday of June, at Brunswick Court House, to adopt measures for that purpose.

We find the following information as given by the Chairman of the East India Association, when examined by a special committee of the House of Commons:

"The whole of the supply of tea for the European market is a manufactured article. There is not a pound of tea which comes to this country from China, which has not undergone a coloring process. Tea, which we call green here, is colored green, and might as well be colored yellow or blue."

MARYLAND WHIG
GUBERNATORIAL CONVENTION.

WILLIAM T. GOLDSBOROUGH
The nominee!

GENERAL TAYLOR
Nominated for the Presidency.

The Convention met on the 16th instant, at Cambridge, Md., and Thomas Duckett, of Prince George's County, presided. The Ballotting then took place.

	1st bal.	2d bal.	3d bal.	4th bal.
Goldsborough	24	22	26	37

Mr. Goldsborough was then waited on by a Committee, and accepted the nomination.

Mr. J. Morrison Harris rose, and after a series of eloquent remarks which drew down the loudest acclamations, offered the following preamble and resolutions:

Whereas, Upon the battle fields of Mexico, where valor strove hardest for victory, the Sons of Maryland were conspicuous in the fight, sustaining by their courage and conduct the honor of the "Old Line" and attesting by their blood that they were worthy descendants of noble sires; our grief for those who have fallen is mingled with the proud consciousness that they have honored the State that gave them birth;

And whereas, the victory of Buena Vista, gained by the exercise of the soundest judgment, the highest military skill, and the most indomitable courage, stands unparalleled in the history of the war, and compares favorably with the most celebrated warfare and generalship of world-renowned leaders, was dearly purchased by the loss of so many valuable lives; and whereas among those who nobly fell in maintaining the honor of their flag, was Lieut. Colonel Henry Clay of Kentucky, who fell at the head of his command at a point where the storm of battle raged fiercest, and whose conduct on the field, whilst it elicited the highest praise of the General and the Army, showed him to have been worthy of his Father;

Resolved, That the Whigs of Maryland in Convention assembled, that they approach with profound respect, the sanctuary of private sorrow, and tender to Henry Clay their sincere and heartfelt sympathy upon the occasion of his Son's death, and would assure him of the continued strength and fervor of that affection which Maryland has ever felt and will ever feel for him.

Resolved, That a copy of this preamble and resolutions be signed by the officers of the Convention, and transmitted to Mr. Clay by its Presiding Officer.

The resolutions were unanimously adopted. Mr. Buchanan then rose and offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the high intellectual capacity, the noble and generous qualities of the heart, the cool bravery, extraordinary prudence, and strong practical good sense which have uniformly distinguished Major General Zachary Taylor, as a citizen and a soldier, "give the world assurance of a man" in whom the highest trust under our Constitution may be reposed with entire confidence.

Mr. J. D. Jones, of Somerset, rose to second the resolution, and having first congratulated the Convention on the unanimity of its action, and the excellent feeling which he found to pervade the members in regard to the very excellent nomination which the Convention had yesterday made, entered into a series of eloquent remarks in relation to the eminent services of General Taylor, detailing his numerous actions, his privations, and his glorious achievements under the most embarrassing circumstances, and urged the adoption of the resolution, as reported by the Chairman of the Committee.

The vote was taken on the passage of the resolution, and it was carried unanimously, and with loud acclamation.

Mr. Stephen, of Prince George's, county offered the following resolution, which was unanimously carried.

Resolved, That this Convention bails with delight the noble and truly American spirit that now animates our Whig brethren throughout the Union, in their laudable efforts to maintain the principles of the Whig party, and that whilst we tender to them our warmest congratulations, we would also assure them that their example will stimulate the Whigs of Maryland to greater activity and zeal, and that we pledge ourselves when the time of action arrives, not to be behind them in making the welkin ring with the shout of "Our Country and the Constitution!"

Mr. Bowie, of Montgomery, offered the following resolution, which he supported with some feeling and very appropriate remarks, in which he advocated with great power the necessity of upholding the present efforts of the State Administration to maintain the public faith of the State. He declared the intention of the nominee of the Convention to pursue the same judicious course.

The following is the resolution: Resolved, That the election of William T. Goldsborough as Governor of Maryland, is identified with the best interests and future prosperity of the State, and the members of this Convention pledge themselves individually and collectively to use every exertion consistent with probity and honor to promote his election.

A week or two since, says the Murfreesboro', Tenn., Telegraph, we published a proposition from "A Cotton Planter" offering to deliver to any "responsible Democrat of Rutherford" by the first day of February next, 500 bales of cotton at ten cents per pound! and also 1000 barrels of corn by the first day of December, at one dollar and fifty cents per barrel! Neither proposition has been taken. Come, gentlemen Locos, if you believe the tariff of 1846 has caused the rise in these articles, let us hear from you.

A white woman was recently arrested for larceny in Worcester, Mass., and she pleaded guilty. She proved to be the wife of a full blooded negro. Any white woman who would marry a negro would steal.

The report of the Committee was unanimously adopted, and the Convention then adjourned, with three hearty cheers for WILLIAM T. GOLDSBOROUGH.

A youth aged 13 was carried over Niagara Falls last Sunday. No trace of his little body was found.

It is stated the best dressed men in Paris now, wear straw hats, blue coats, single breasted and close to the figure, and waistcoats of spotted white, with the points slightly rounded.

Mr. Benton will not be present at the Chicago River & Harbor Convention, but he goes in for the Convention and its object, and promises a letter. We commend to Mr. Ritchie, Mr. Benton's course as an answer to the Union's violent philippic of the 16th inst. against that Convention.

Lt. Charles G. Hunter, says the Balt. Pat., is forthwith to have a separate command, that is, he is to be appointed to the command of a vessel, to proceed to the Mediterranean after privateers and pirates. He left his wife up the Mediterranean last year—where she now is—and came home to participate in the war which he had heard of as existing between this country and Mexico.

Augusta is in Cincinnati.

If the rulers or the people of Mexico, says the Richmond Whig, have imbibed the false impression that the Whigs are inimical to their own country, it is because of the flagrant perversion of their language and sentiments which so often appears in the columns of Locofoco papers.

My country finds me at her side, and I am determined to fulfill the mission that has been confided to the very last extremity, and my dearest interests and my very existence are staked on the altar of liberty and independence of my country.

[Santa Anna's Address 19th May.] And so, this is the mission upon which Mr. Polk permitted Santa Anna to return to his country!

Santa Anna grieves, in his address of the 19th of May, at the idea of being compelled to renounce the gratification of spilling his blood in defence of his country. Well, it is a grievous thought, but we trust that his Excellency's grief will be somewhat assuaged by the recollection that if he did not lay down his life at the battle of Cerro Gordo, he lay down a limb. Surely no more can be required of a brave soldier!

The Government organ says that it has the confidence of the Administration, and the Administration has its confidence. The other day, says Practice, the Union proposed the robbery of Mexican church property, and the Administration denied all such views. This is a queer specimen of confidence. It may be however, that the organ lies on the Administration—and the Administration re-lies on the organ.
